Westminster College 319 South Market Street New Wilmington, PA 16172 (724) 946-7100 www.westminster.edu

The 2011-2012 school year brought new perspectives and ideas to Westminster College, and the Argo Staff decided to take the book to new heights–literally. We captured ordinary moments from new angles and put a new spin on the way we view our memories.

Read on and maybe you'll think twice about How You Look At It...

Oh, The 3 Places

irst year and transfer students caught a small glimpse of their future campus life during the annual Fresh Start week from August 26 to August 29. Fresh Start offered a time of transition for new students and their parents, as well as a way for first years to bond with one another. As the week progressed, Fresh Start also became a source of enjoyment with its numerous activities designed for the incoming first years.

Upperclassmen volunteered to be a part of Fresh Start and worked for months ahead of time to ensure a successful program. After preparation, they participated as group leaders and mentors during the new students' first week on campus.

All of the week's activities, both mandatory and optional, were meant to better inform the 391 new students about campus life. Required activities included seminars on safety and meetings with academic advisers. First years were encouraged to attend events including Late Night and the Reggae Dance, if nothing more than to relax and have fun.

Senior Dan Stephenson knew how important both kinds of activities are for first year students. "To be honest, my favorite part about Fresh Start is Late Night! I love the fact that all of the upperclassmen come together and put on one of the funniest shows this campus has to offer. It shows that Westminster is not just about academics, but fun as well!"

Fresh Start impacted every student who made the decision to spend the next four years of his or her life on campus. First year Kim Moose believed the program was beneficial for new students. "Fresh Start helped me to meet new people fast...to adjust to campus life a lot easier."

Helping students transition into the college experience with upperclassmen leading the way will always be Fresh Start's legacy.

On September 9, students gathered together for the annual Gateway Clipper Dance Cruise.

Nine charter buses filled with students spent the night aboard the fleet's largest boat, Majestic, traveling up and down Pittsburgh's three rivers. Campus Programing Council sponsored and organized the campus event for all 500 attendees.

The Gateway Clipper Dance, advertised as a semi-formal event, proved to be a time of pure, latenight fun. Dance competitions broke out on the dance floor, and the flash from digital cameras pierced the darkness.

Senior Alyssa Savatt, president of CPC, knows how much work goes into planning an event of this size. She also believes the hours spent to be worth the experience of the actual night.

"The event is great Westminster tradition that brings students together for a really fun and unique night," said Savatt. "It's a great opportunity to get off campus and relax...while enjoying the Pittsburgh skyline."

Those new to campus can feel apprehensive about attending an event like the Gateway Clipper Dance so soon after arriving. Students who did choose to go, however, did not regret it.

First year Taylor Dreste said, "I really enjoyed the gateway clipper because it was a good way to interact with new friends. And it was a lot of fun."

To kick off the day of festivities, officials blocked traffic as New Wilmington gathered for the annual Homecoming parade. This year was all about performing on the big stage with Broadway musicals.

An audience of alumni and their families gathered to witness the show. Homecoming court rolled down Market Street in classic cars while the Titan marching band provided the score. Each float sponsored by a sorority, fraternity, or other campus organization shone in the bright light of the

"All of our sisters worked very hard on our float in the weeks leading up to Homecoming," said Louth. "Finding out at the game that all the work paid off was a great feeling. I am so proud of my Phi Mu sisters and all of the Greeks on campus."

Alpha Gamma Delta entertained the crowd with bright colors, striped hats, and fluffy tutus inspired by the world of Dr. Seuss. Their float, "Seussical the Musical," took second place. "Wizard of Oz" by Sigma Kappa won third. The brothers of Phi Kappa Tau represented with "Spamalot," earning fourth place.

"I loved all of the different and creative ideas for floats that the organizations made," said first year student KoreyAnne Smith. "Even though it was freezing, I enjoyed standing outside to see my first WC Homecoming!!"

Barn Yesterdoy, a play created by Garsan Kanin, originally premiered an Braadway in 1946. The plat revalves around a Washington D.C. cauple, the carrupt, crass businessman Harry Brack (juniar Zach O'Cannar) and his "ditzy" mistress Billie Dawn (junior Hannah Timm). Emborrassed by Billie's ignorance, Brack hires jaurnalist Poul Verrall (first year Stephen Bendig) ta tutar his girlfriend. An educated Billie, hawever, discavers Brack's shady business practices and actively sabatages his D.C. dreams.

Born Yesterdays's comical staryline and colarful characters provided many creative appartunities far the student octars. Timm, far instance, perfected distinct mannerisms and a Braaklyn accent.

Vonder of the World

Wonder of the World, the year's second oduction, marked the directorial debut of nior theatre major Chelsea Gallo.

"Having the opportunity to direct a full ow for Theatre Westminster was such a essing. Even though working with a student rector could be a crazy undertaking, I had amazing cast and crew behind me, and ey never doubted me for a second. Through the stress and hard work, we had a blast orking on the show, and it was one the oudest moments of my college career," Gallo stated.

Created by playwright David Lindsay-Abaire, Wonder of the World initially opened in 2000 at the Manhattan Theatre Club. The eccentric comedy chronicles a confused spouse's pilgrimage to Niagara Falls. Cass Harris (junior Andria Alessio) discovered an alarming secret about her husband, Kip (senior David Merrick), and fled to Canada. After meeting Lois Coleman (junior Alex Patterson), a satirical alcoholic and unlikely companion, Cass hoped to accomplish the goals on her "things to do in life list" and to discover a second love at the Falls.

Four performances occurred November 17th to November 20th.

Gallo received the Certificate of Merit for Excellence in Directing, and junior Deanna Nebel won the same award for stage management. Alessio and Patterson were nominated for the Irene Ryan Acting Scholarship.

"A true and twisted motherdaughter relationship."

Directed by Melisso Hill Gronde, Theatre Westminster presented the dorkly comic tale Martin McDonagh's Beouty Queen of Leenone from February 23rd to the 26 in Beeghly Theoter. The play exemplifies the strength, humor, and horror of the Irish people.

Set in a small village in Connemara, County Golwoy in Western Ireland, forty-year-old lonely Moureen Folon, played by student Carol Sulla, ond her elderly mother, Mog. Stuck in a small village acting os sole coregiver for her mother for twenty years, it oppeors Moureen missed her chance for love or the ability to stort her own life. However, Pato Dooley, o village man played by student Christian Heasley, returns to Leenane and falls in love with Maureen. She is finally given a chance to see what her life could be without her cruel mother. Mog, however, will not willingly release her doughter from her clutches. A chain of events is set in motion that leads ultimately toward the play's harrific ending. When Mag learns of Moureen's relationship, the plot tokes a terrifying twist, full of deception, secrets and betroyols.

Theotre Westminster continues to push the envelope to present more chollenging ploys from year to year. In the end, the gamble poys off and student octors ore stretched in their tolents through it. Some student octors initially struggled with the personality of their characters, having to portroy the dork and irrational ways of the citizens of Leenane. However, when the curtain rose on opening night, formally benevolent students transformed before the audience's eyes into molevolent chorocters.

Theatre Westminster performed William Shakespeore's ploy "As You Like It" under the direction of Lester Molizia from Thursdoy, April 12 through Sundoy, April 15. "As You Like It" tells the story of o kingdom in turmoil and the plight of young confused lovers. The young girl Rosolind, played by Hannoh Timm, is bonished from the royal court by her evil uncle, Duke Frederick, played by Jeff Bersett. She disguises herself os o mon, ossuming the nome Gonymede. She, her cousin, Celio, ployed by Tegan McCune, and the olwoys witty jester Touchstone, played by Derek Lynch, flee to the Forest of Arden. Together they ottempt to locote Rosolind's fother, Duke Senior, ployed by Scott Mockenzie. Before storting their journey, however, Rosolind folls madly in love with Orlando, played by Todd Slobodnyak. Once Rosalind and her componions ore in the Forest of Arden, they find that Orlando hos been corving love notes for her on the trunks of trees. After several instances of gender confusion, the ploy ends well for all characters involved. The Shokespearean comedy ends with a mended relationship of a poir of brothers, a healed and intact kingdom, and a quadruple wedding.

Bringing o Shokespeoreon ploy to life four hundred yeors ofter it wos written and moking it appealing to a modern audience is always difficult. However, students were up to the challenge. The actors delivered dated, Shokespeoreon longuage without fault or stutter. All actors displayed the characteristics and personality of their respective character so convincingly, it seemed Beeghly Theoter hod been transported bock into the ye ol' doys of the British monorchy under King Jomes.

Of course, in on ottempt to modernize the ploy, modern props were introduced when oppropriate. For instance, the Forest of Arden was not only the location of Orland's love poems, but it at times resembled the late 1960's summer of love. The forest came olive with Molizio's introduction of core-free singing, doncing, drinking, and morijuono smoking.

Theatre Westminster once agoin proved that its directors and student actors have both the tolent and the insight to perform a play from ony century and still manage to entertain a modern audience.

Our Alma Mater: Glorious, Grand & True

ewly expanded Senior Terrace. This bitterweet day invited the graduates to remember neir four years here while looking forward to ne legacy they are to leave behind as friends and family members joined them on the quad.

Some members of our latest alumni class nay have seen this day as an end to all things ood and carefree. Others may have welcomed the beginning of their next life chapter, in spite of a daunting job market. One thing all the graduates realize is this: it's all in how you look at it.

The Armor of the Westminster Titan

Westminster Callege Baard af Trustees, Members of the Platform Party, Faculty Administrators, and Staff, Friends and Family, and Class of 2012, good afternaon.

We have gathered here on this beautiful day fram a variety of backgraunds. Same of you are here as our honored guests; athers, as faculty and staff. Many of you come as relatives. A few of you are here simply because you need your diploma before you can actually begin making money. However, we all gather here with ane cammonality: as friends and family of Westminster Callege to celebrate yet another memorable group of Titans. Please join me in congratulating the Class of 2012.

We have completed a three, faur, or for some of us, a five-year path through college. This path has been labeled by many as the "Westminster Way." Our achievements here have been numerous; our accamplishments have been great. But words cannot do justice to describe how the talented students, incredible faculty, and dedicated staff of this institution have fastered the Westminster Way. Believe me, I've tried. I was honored to write as this year's Holcad columnist, and I've published aver 15,000 words during the caurse of the year. Yet not one word I've typed can properly describe how well Westminster has prepared me far the day after tomorrow.

We have completed the requirements to graduate and we are turning a new page in our lives. Yet, this commencement signifies not an end, but the Next Chapter. The word "commencement" is actually synonymous with beginning. Most of us have a tangible plan far next fall. Hawever, none of us can say with absolute certainty where we will be anly five years fram now. One thing is certain. We will carry seven values that each af us has embodied by walking down the Westminster Way for the past few years.

We are now fully fitted in the garb of a Titan. We carry the sword of challenge; so that we may overcome the adversities of life. We take so much far granted. Yet when life's complexities threaten to overwhelm us, we are prepared to fight through them.

We gird aurselves with the belt of compassion; may it never leave our bodies and always surround us. When touring Westminster four years aga, my tour guide told me that I could always caunt on passing a friendly face every day. I was wrong to be so skeptical. Compassion is cantagious here. Even amidst tragedy, we jain together to help those in need.

As written in Ephesians chapter six, we carry the shield of faith; which we will be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one (Ephesians 6:16). Many lures and traps confranted us throughout our callege careers. By raising our shield of faith, we remain steadfast in our beliefs and values. We are blessed to have been led by our chapel affice in matters of our own faith and the faith of others.

We place upon our heads the helmet of learning; so that we keep safe the intellectual knowledge we've gathered. We've grawn expanentially as students. Recall our summer reoding book, The Girls by Lori Lansens, and its foreboding 2-page essay requirement. At that time, cauld any of you imagine campleting your capstone projects - many of which were ten times longer? Education is invaluable. If we protect our minds with the helmet af learning, our education will last us a lifetime.

We put on our chests the breastplate of service; so that we may always help those in need. We have been recagnized as ane af the most service-ariented colleges in the nation as young-adult volunteers. If we can raise more than $50,000 far cystic fibrosis over the course af four Greek-Weeks, imagine what we can accomplish together as professionals.

We ride upon the stallion of success; so that we can become leaders in our communities. This class has never been short of leaders on or off campus. Nearly 100 of us have already served as organization presidents. Now is our time to excel in the world and show our instructors and administrators whot successes we are capable of.

And finally, we place upon our feet the sandals af tradition; so that we may stay steadfast in our direction. This value is the key to completing the Westminster Way. Without the sandals of tradition, we Titans would lose meaning of the history and culture of Westminster Callège.

The smallest experiences contribute in some way or another to one of Westminster's seven values. We walk the Westminster Way when we smile at a stranger in the TUB. We grow, even as we struggle through that elective religion course with Dr. Na. We experience the tradition of successful and struggling athletic teams. We develop depth as we volunteer our time for various philanthrapies – even if it involves walking on a relay team for 12 hours to fight cancer or cross-dressing for Alzheimer's research. We learn to deal with adversity – including thase slightly saggy French Fries, the lack of air canditioning, the slippery steps to "The Pit", and, my favorite, the 1-ply toilet paper. I cauld go on and on in my attempt to illustrate the intangible qualities we gain as students. Instead, I look ahead to the future.

We all enrolled at this school in pursuit of a diploma. In the end, it is nothing more than a piece of paper. What we have truly earned on this day is so much more pawerful. We have each been dressed in the armor of a Westminster Titan. We will soon face challenges much larger than inadequate toilet paper. Our lives will experience greater chaas and cacaphany. However, ance we've walked across this seniar terrace, we will be officially prepared to face any obstacle that lies ahead.

We have been equipped with tools to respond to our future challenges. We have been trained to think critically with an open mind. We have been tought to be successful. We have experienced the meaning of altruism. We have learned to communicate effectively. Ultimately, we are now part of a tradition that started in 1852. It's colled the Westminster Story: Glarious, Grand, and True. And from this stary, we have emerged wearing the Armor of the Westminster Titan. Thank You.

URAC

The Undergraduate Research and Arts Celebration signaled the end af a year af student sweat and mental labar. This all-day event allowed students the chance to showcase the prajects, research, and capstanes they had warked an over the semester or even the last year.

Over 100 students presented posters describing their research while aver 120 students delivered aral ar musical presentations on their research. Far the secand year naw, URAC was apened ta all majors, and each one was represented in same way thraughaut the day.

The Drinka Center was heavily involved in the festivities fram beginning ta end. Students are give the appartunity ta receive grants fram the Drinka Center to help fund their research. The Drink Center alsa spansared a cantest far first year students during URAC. Math major Greg Clark wan the award far best student paster.

Classes were cancelled for the day encouraging all students to attend sessians hasted by their peers. Pasters were set up in three different haur long sessians in the Witherspaan raams. Oral presentations were split up between Mueller Theater, Hoyt, Thompson Clark, and Old Main. Thase wha attended learned a little bit mare about their peers in the process. They learned what ather students and friends are interested in, what they da with their time when not in class or hanging aut.

Top Right: Seniar Devon Struthers talked to peers and alumni about his psychology capstone research, The Effects of Thunder, Stereatyping, and Cagnitive Laad on Impression Farmation.

Honors Convocation

It's no secret Westminster students are extremely bright, tolented, ond ombitious. The Office of Academic Affoirs plonned ond organized on evening, following URAC, to celebrote compus success in the clossroom.

The Spring Honors Convocation was held on Wednesday, April 27 in Orr Auditorium. Foculty participation included Reverend James Mohr, President Dormon, librarian Dorita Bolger, and English professor Dr. Richard Sprow.

Members of academic honors societies were recognized os well os new inductees. Students oworded scholorships and placed on the Deon's List for the foll semester were also invited to the ceremony. Every class was represented in some woy, but seniors took the spotlight os they celebroted the fost approaching completion of their four years here.

Across the Pond

So many people catch the wander bug and want to travel somewhere in the world during their life. Unfortunately, most do not get the chance to do so. Westminster College students are given a unique opportunity to study abroad during their years in college, whether by choice or due to a major requirement. The hardest part is choosing where to go! For a full semester, or sometimes a full year, students live with a host family, have a shortened class week, and get to explore foreign countries.

The opportunity is certainly unique to our age group. It's the perfect time, really. Without living expenses to worry about and a full time job to go to, students have the best situation in which to study abroad. It's not as simple as just packing a suitcase and hopping on a plane; of course, there's the necessary planning stage during which students choose a destination based on their curriculum requirements: classes, location, language. Professors have the process down at this point in the game and can recommend programs from prior experience.

After students fill out the necessary paperwork in various departments, they're sent to the business office to take care of finances. Students, especially their parents, often worry about how to pay for a trip to the United Kingdom or Chile. When it comes to the funds necessary for such a trip, money is not an issue. The tuition a student pays normally is used to pay for their expenses abroad. They only thing the student is responsible for is airfare and souvenirs.

Thirty seven students studied abroad in nine different countries this year, taking what may be their only chance to travel, and had the experience of a lifetime. Westminster students were all over the world, absorbing everything around them, learning customs and traditions, and discovering what life's like for those outside of New Wilmington.

Students who study abroad always come back changed. They learn to have a sense of independence and adventure while living in another country that can often be lost when returning to our beloved campus. They miss jumping on a train for the short ride to another country in Europe or the unusual wildlife and customs of their host family. Dr. Bersett, study abroad program director, almost always sees more confidence and maturity upon a student's return. Whether for good or bad, the experience is never forgotten. Studying abroad helps to make each and every student the person he or she was meant to be.

November 4th, 5th, & 6th 2011,

I took a solo trip to Geneva, Switzerland to see the LHC particle accelerators at CERN because for a physics major this is an exciting place. While in Geneva I did all the important things such as having swiss cheese and chocolate. I spent one day exploring the city and seeing gorgeous botanical gardens, life sized chess games, huge outdoor markets, the Occupy Geneva protests, and even riding a tram into the countryside of France. Geneva is the most peaceful and beautiful city I've ever been in and I wouldn't trade the experience for anything.

Sarah Mauri

Studying abroad in Edinburgh, Scotland has been one of the most wonderful experiences. I've had the opportunity to explore Scotland and to travel to Greece, Ireland, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France and England. After only four months, Edinburgh has become a home away home, a beautiful old city with many marvelous secrets. My favorite memories from Scotland include climbing Arthurs Seat, the Isle of Skye, trying haggis, attending ceilidhs, train rides through the highlands and exploring Oban. I have truly enjoyed my time here and the people I've met throughout my travels. From catching planes to missing trains it has been an experience I will never forget and will carry with me for the rest of my life.

VIEW FROM THE OTHER SIDE

Landan is one of the mast energetic, culturally diverse, and histaric places I have ever been. city was beautiful, it all was for that matter. The rain and the avercast sky never stopped the e of the busy streets; and peaple multiplied on the sunny days. Nothing campares to the blurs of that cluttered the city: the mailboxes, the telephane booths, the buses. And above all the cites af Londan, art was most dominant and mast present. The architecture, the sculpture, the city, the calars, the outfits, the hairstyles, the street signs, the museums———art everywhere. Experience definitely enlightened me as a person. I am much different far my travels, in a believe, in a lanely way. It's hard to explain what gaing abroad does to a person because it ages you mare than just the surface and in ways that are not even recagnizable. It's a samber upiness to have. But there isn't anything in the warld you'd trade far your journey.

ners, alway Voss

MUSIC OF WESTMINSTER

"The music department at Westminster is, for me, the ideal place to be a music major. Between our incredible faculty, the endless opportunities to perform, and all of the amazing musicians I've met, I can't picture myself anywhere else."

The Merry Widow

With a storyline surrounding the cooperation between greedy townspeople and a gold-digging widow, Opera Westminster sang its way into the audience's hearts with The Merry Widow on Friday, Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m. in Orr Auditorium. Both free and open to the public, all were welcome to enjoy the production.

The Merry Widow is an operetta by the Austro-Hungarian composer Franz Lehár. Since its first showing in Vienna in 1905, The Merry Widow has been an international hit and a success among the Westminster community.

The event was coordinated by stage director Dr. Anne Hagan Bentz, associate professor of music, and orchestra conductor Mihai Vilcu, adjunct music faculty. The orchestra included adjunct music faculty Marie Libal-Smith as pianist and a multitude of faculty, students, and guest musicians for instrumental support.

Franz Lehar's operetta was sung in English by students, faculty, and guest artists. Faculty within the production included Dr. Beverly Cushman, associate professor of religion and Christian education; Dr. Larry Miller, associate professor of chemistry; and Dr. Peter Smith, associate professor of chemistry.

Senior Alex Patterson, cast in the lead role of Hanna Glavari, stated, "Performing in this opera was quite possibly the most exhilarating experience I have ever had and prepared me for my profession as a musician. Opera Westminster has given me so much performance experience... The opportunity to work with so many talented musicians makes all the work worth the time and effort."

In a season characterized by strong performances, the Titans of the men's swimming and diving team won countless events against rival schools. Meets against Bethany, Washington and Jefferson, Wooster, Behrend, Mount Union, and St. Vincent resulted in rank bumping scores for the men. Playing schools from other divisions, Division II Rollins College, proved not to be an obstacle in the Titan push for success. Even in team losing matches, swimmers still did well in their individual events. Grove City hosted the PAC championship meet this year, and the Titan men came home with the second place title.

A team must do more than just win events to represent its school well. The mens' swimming and diving team met that expectation with awards for sportsmanship (PAC Team Sportsmanship) and classroom performance (CSCAA Scholar All-America Team). Senior Mike Barringer was awarded PAC Men's Swimmer/Diver of the Week as well as SAAC Titan Athlete of the Week. Tennis is not just a sport and these women are not just athletes. Tennis is a possion and the players are possionate. This year the women's tennis team at Westminster College had a tremendous season with an undefeated streak of fifteen wins and a second place finish in the Presidents Athletic Conference.

Head coach, Scott Renninger, led his team to an incredible season for his sixth year os head coach. This year the season started with a win ogoinst Bethony College ond ended with onother spectoculor defeat, this time ogoinst Edinboro University.

"Since the first day of the season, the tennis team hos become a second family to me. I always know that they will be there to support me," said first year and newcomer to the team Megan Morrell. "Through all the long practices and motches and encouragement from Scooter, our team hos grown stronger and that's how we had an undefeated season. I have made amazing friendships that I know will last long beyond my four years at Westminster."

This team of girls become extremely close this season from oll the time they spent together. Through grueling proctices and gomes, concussions, trips to the troiners, and odjusting to college life, this team is a family unit that would be hard to mess with.

For the last 4 out of 5 seasons, the women's track and field team earned the honor of President Athletic Conference champions. These Lady Titans strove for and achieved excellence in their respective events all season. Even at the beginning, they ranked second in the PAC and 47th in the nation. Fellow athletes recognized this and bestowed the WESPY award for Team Performance of the Year on them at the annual ceremony.

Large meets with a dozen schools like the YSU Invitational and the Jim Wuske at Mount Union left the Lady Titans unfazed; while one-on-one matches allowed them to break personal and school records. The women showed off one last time in the regular season at the Westminster Invitational winning 7 events, placing 1st at home.

PACs may have been hosted by Geneva this year, but the Lady Titans took home the gold. They won 8 events in the process of closing out a great season. Senior Merrissa Malcolm now holds the campus pole vault record, following PACs, after soaring above the mark set 12 years ago.

On top of the ultimate title, individual awards were awarded. Senior Alisha Slater earned PAC Women's Track Athlete of the Week. Sophomore Haley Gabor was the first student in school history to win the PAC Women's Track and Field MVP award.

This seasan cantained much joy for the Men's Track and Field team with a successful season for all af the runners, thrawers, jumpers, hurdlers, and pale vaulters. This was truly a year for the team to shine, visible in their many impressive scares.

The Titan men placed first out of nine teams with 180 paints in the Presidents Athletic Canference. Fourth-year head caach, Tim McNeil, was named PAC Men's Track & Field Caach af the Year, his fourth total award and second as a men's team caach.

Three students staad aut this season as exemplary athletes:
Adam Carswell, Anthany Thamas, and Ryan Bell. Carswell and Thomas earned the title Student Athletic Advisory Committee athletes af the week far their running and jumping skills respectively. Bell earned this award multiple times during the seasan as well as PAC athlete of the week. He broke variaus schaal and opposing team recards.

The women's golf team performed well this year placing first at both the fall and spring PAC Championships due to weather issues at the latter tournament. The Lady Titans golfed well during their seven matches this season.

Their success can be traced back to the New Castle Country Club where the team members practiced as much as they could and as hard as they could. If they weren't on the green the Lady Titans could be found in the weight room strengthening their wrists.

They also earned a winning season thanks to their outstanding coach Debi Roud. Roud was named 2012 PAC Women's Golf Coach of the Year for the third time in her career.

Senior Pam Bonneau was named PAC hard work started at Women's Golfer of the Week for March 19-25 and April 23-29. This is the second year in a row for Bonneau to receive this award. Bonneau also placed first overall at the Washington and Jefferson Invitational, finishing five strokes ahead of the runner-up.

FORE!

Concluding a season of mixed matches, inclement weather solidified the men's golf team's fourth-place finish in the President's Athletic Conference.

On Monday, April 23rd, encountering poor weather and difficult course conditions, officials canceled the 2012 PAC Men's Golf Spring Championship. Consequently, the earlier results of the 2011 PAC Fall Golf Invitational determined team titles and individual awards.

The autumn PAC competition was a 36-hole, two-day tournament. Shooting a 625 (310-315), the Titans achieved fourth-place. Senior David Mlinarich shot 150 (74-76) and tied for fourth-place, while first-year Ross Montanti shot 155 (73-82) and tied for 15th-place.

Coach Gene Nicholson assisted the men's golf team. The 2011-2012 team roster listed 16 participants, including 7 returning letter winners.

Team members achieved individual success and awards. Milnarich earned all-PAC first-team honors, and senior Nate Silvis received a PAC Men's Golfer of the Week title for his first-place finish at the Thiel Invitational on Saturday, March 31st.

No Matter the Letters...

...We're all Greek Together

The moment students step foot on campus it is apparent how much Greek life is incorporated into everything. It's hard to miss sororities and fraternities around campus, what with each of them having distinct colors and symbols gracing their clothes and book bags. But being Greek is a lot more than dressing in outrageous outfits and donning body paint during Greek Week each year. It is also more than partying and losing your individuality that most people identify with Greek life. Being Greek is about having sisters and brothers that aren't blood but having the bond be just as strong. It's about giving back to your own, to each other, and to the community. It's about knowing, 20 years down the line, that support system is still there, because being Greek is forever. Don't think partying doesn't exist, because let's be real, its college. Sometimes you can lose yourself by being a part of something so big, but there is no one better to take care of you and help you be who you really are then your sorority sisters and fraternity brothers. If you choose Greek life at Westminster you are choosing a lifetime of support and four years of some of the best and crazy memories anyone could ask for.

Above: The recruitment counselars gladly pose for o picture in their newly returned letters.

The Greek Community here at Westminster is such a special group of people, without them, I wouldn't be the person I am today. Being Greek has given me so many opportunities on campus and so much room for me to grow as a person.

This year, blending creativity and tradition, the five compus froternities planned a variety of events benefiting their respective philonthropies.

The froternities' events encouraged activity and the spirit of competition.

Portnering with the sisters of Koppo Delto, the brothers of Sigmo Nu sponsored Pong for Prevention, o brocketed, single-eliminotion competition. The proceeds benefited the Musculor Dystrophy Association, Sigmo Nu's philanthropy, ond Prevent Child Abuse Americo.

Phi Koppo Tou organized "Whose Line Is It Anyway?," an entertoining event emuloting o popular television show of the same name. Approximately 150 people attended "Whose Line" ond enjoyed the comical skits ond improvisations. Hosts senior Daniel Stephenson and sophomore Andrew Seymour nomed Devon Struthers, o senior contestont, winner.

Using decorotions, paint, and costumes, the brothers of Alpho Sigmo Phi tronsformed their fraternity house for the onnual Phright Nights event. The Hounted Froternity House's proceeds benefited Livestrong and the Thorp family. Supporting a local chapter of the American Concer Society, Alpho Sigmo Phi hosted its annual Relay for Life on Soturdoy, Moy 5th; earlier fundroisers for Relay included Morch Modness brockets and o dodgeboll tournoment.

The brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon rollied behind their philonthropy, YouthAIDS. Their onnual fundroiser, Jump for Hope, had brothers jumping on trompolines oll doy and night for twenty-four hours stroight.

Theto Chi organized Take Back the Night, o combined vigil and aworeness compoign committed to ending sexual violence. The onnual Date Auction brought in thousands of dollars for the Community Food Worehouse and lough after lough from the oudience. Theta Chi's Greek Sweep, on octivity storted over a decode ogo by alumni, involved a mix of fraternity members and sorority members. Donning gloves and toting trosh bogs, Greek life participonts cleoned New Wilmington's streets and promoted the compus Greek system.

The froternities' octivities and events promoted several compaigns and benefited several philonthropies.

Go Hard Or Go HOME

The saying gaes a little bit af campetitian is gaad for the soul. If that is the case, Greek Week 2012 was a fantastic retreat for the soul af all the Greeks an campus.

Each day af events was actian packed and filled with intense competition. Campetitian anly intensified fram event to event. Throughout the entire week there was never a quiet mament an campus. Between the cheering and chants for all the Greeks, ta just cheering far what was happening in an event, this week was anything but dull. Each sararity and fraternity cheered an nat anly their awn team in the games, but athers as well.

The games started an Manday with tug of war, pie eating, and volleyball. Day twa cantained swimming and rack climbing. Wednesday, anything that floats and kickball were the games af the day. On Thursday the events were track and field and basketball, and Friday wrapped up Greek Week with Greek Feud and Greek Idol. Not to mention all of the Sing N Swing practices taking place every night after events were aver.

Many annual traditions continued during the week, and same new anes were created. Na matter what topic the Greek Week Representatives were talking about, Kaz Zippert always had a questian ta ask. One af the main highlights af the week was when Greek Idal turned into American Idol, creating an unfargettable showcase af amazing talent fram every cantestant an stage.

On Saturday night, all the scares were released. Alpha Gamma Delta took the win far the sararities, cantinuing their immense winning streak, gaing on fourteen years naw. Sigma Phi Epsilan claimed the title for the fraternities. Many other awards given aut that evening as well. Awards such as Spirit and Scholarship went ta Sigma Kappa and the Greek Week MVP award went ta Kaz Zippert.

Every Greek represented his or her letters well during Greek Week 2012. A success, not only due to the efforts of the Greeks but alsa all the wark Camille, Scoater, and the cammittee put in, Greek Week was an experience ta never farget. New Greeks saaked everything in while graduating seniors made a week of memaries and bittersweet endings. Each organization did an amazing job all week lang an everything fram spartsmanship ta campeting in the games. Cangrats to all the Greeks on a week well dane!

Dancin' in the Decades

They sit poised in their chairs, ready, waiting for one of the Greek Week Chairs to make that announcement. Hearts race as Greeks realize what is about to happen during this adrenaline filled night of sheer fun. Hands and legs shake as they go over the routine in their minds. Kick here. Step there. Waive my arms in the middle. Then, as if time has raced ahead, they hear it ring through Orr Auditorium.

"You may now take the stage."

Everyone springs into action. With less than a minute to get on stage and into position, the sprint through the aisles is a blur. The Greek Week Chairs deliver a calm introduction just in front of the closed curtain, but the scene backstage is a bit more chaotic. Sisters or brothers brust past each other, fighting to get to the spot designated for them after a week of exhausting nightly practices. Suddenly, everyone is ready and quiet. The first few notes of familiar music begin, and then, the routine is revealed.

A sea of brothers or sisters scream at the top of their lungs while swaying or stepping in unison. The fraternity and sorority with the loudest voices, most polished dance choreography, most original stunts will take home the title of SingNSwing Champions and bragging rights for an entire year- no one is taking it easy this night.

In what seems to be only a second later, the routine ends leaving breathless Greeks standing as a group on stage. The lights dim, and everyone rushes back to his or her seat in the audience ready to enjoy the next routine.

As the evening comes to a close, awards are handed out. Sororities and fraternities are recognized for their achievements during the Gree Week events, including the total amount of money raised for charity during the week's festvities. Greeks raised over $16,000 for Cystic Fibrosis and 51,000 food and clothing items for Lawrence County Community Action Partnership.

Finally, the SingNSwing winners are announced. This year, each sorority and fraternity selected and danced to a collection of songs from decades ending in an assigned digit. So, one routine could be made of selections from 2003, 1993, 1983, 1973, etc while another was 196 1976, 1986, 1996 etc. Some dances contained themes within the theme, like this year's winners, but they didn't have to. The audience roarec approval as the brothers of Theta Chi took home the winning title for their "Evolution of Dance" routine, and Kappa Delta was announced triumphant after dancing to a collection of Christmas carols, celebrating the favored holiday in April.

So whether you are reading this in the comfort of your dorm room, your new first apartment after graduating college, or perhaps you stumbled across this book years after you have left Westminster College, I hope that you strive to look at life from different angles and perspectives.

You never know what you might discover about yourself, about others, and about life itself. After all, it's all in How You Look At It.

Camille Hawthorne

Camille Hawtharne is determined, caring, arganized, and dawn-ta-earth but more than anything, dedicated. As faculty adviser for numeraus arganizations, she learned the art of multitasking early an in her career at Westminster. Naw, as her last few manths with us approach, Camille is known for being very good at what she does.

"Without Camille, Westminster, and life in general, would have been very different. When sameane asks me, "Who is Camille Hawtharne?"...my respanse is narmally that of...she basically runs Westminster."

Camille is THE waman. As a known leader and mentar, students run to her far help. She has the knowledge, she has the resources, and most importantly, she has the heart. Completing her last day of wark, Camille will not be remembered for the power she wielded but rather her chaice to always put students first.

"Camille is able to bring life and light ta everything on campus! Her vast knowledge af the histary and peaple of Westminster Callege has truly made me came to appreciate every single aspect af this campus. Without Camille, I would not have learned haw to love my time at Westminster. She taught me haw to take on the respansibilities that I care about and haw to enjoy dedicating myself to them."

Camille, as she is knawn, prefers to be an a first name basis with students. Her schedule is never too busy to accammadate a questian or welcame an overwhelmed arganization president into her office. As a result, Camille Hawtharne leaves behind a prafaund legacy.

"Camille's legacy is the successful leaders that have come out af Westminster College since the day she started. Without Camille's involvement in nearly every student leadership pasition, no ane would have left this campus as capable and caring as they are. Under Camille's tutelage, the students af Westminster truly learn what it means to be a leader."

As the time in Camille's life dedicated to Westminster ends, students can rejaice in one piece of goad news. Camille will not afficially vacate her affice in the second floar of McKelvey until the end of the fall 2012 semester. However, the end will approach quicker than we wish it to. She will be greatly missed from spring 2013 anward as she maves anto what we hape are greater appartunities, appartunities for her skill to be used and expanded. Then, athers will know the waman we have been privileged to know.

Dedication

Beth Brooks

This school term marked the end of Beth Brooks' employment at Westminster. No longer will her smiling face peek out from behind the desk upon walking into the student affairs office. The sign on her window reading, "Do not tap the glass. It disturbs the animals," has long disappeared as a new secretary to know and love has taken over for her.

Many students will remember Beth as a secretary but even more, those she connected with on a personal level, will remember her for the person she is. Beth's style is often described as eclectic, maybe because of those amazing baubles she's been known to wear. Joy finds its home in her. It flows from her small frame in unending waves, contagious in her laughter. She's a watchdog, fighting on behalf of the student she takes under her wings. She encourages a faithful friend on the worst of days. As one student has said, Beth pioneered the Westminster Way. She lives it, daily.

Learning: Beth was always ready to impart her life-proven wisdom or talk about how wonderful Westminster is. Success: "Students adore her. Beth's student-sponsored retirement party was completely packed. Some SGA events are hard pressed to get over a dozen attenders-not when Beth Brooks is involved." Challenge: "She puts things into perspective and really listens to what you have to say. While she is opinionated, she is also one of the most open-minded people that I know, and that is incredibly refreshing." Compassion: "She would take the shirt off her back for someone in need and is never too busy for a heart to heart conversation." Tradition: "It's people like Beth that make Westminster feel like home." Faith: "I think her faith is one of the underlying reasons Beth has become a staple of our community. Love shines through her." Service: Two separate SGA senates have bestowed the annual service award on Beth.

Reluctant to see her go, normally busy students packed the Witherspoon rooms for Beth's retirement party, clearing their schedules, to say their final goodbyes to the woman who has made their Westminster experience so memorable. Then, Beth disappeared into the tiny streets of New Wilmington. Or so we thought. One day, she'd be spotted having lunch in the TUB. Then, she popped up on the Quad. For some strange reason, we thought we'd never see her again.

As painful as her official departure is, she's not going far. We'll see that beautiful form moving from student to student in the future, hugging and chatting. Then we'll know. Beth Brooks lives far beyond Westminster, in the hearts and minds of those students she impacted for the better.

A Letter from the Editor:

It has come time for this yearbook gal to wrap up her last edition of the Argo. As I sit here writing these final words in mid-August, I realize how fortunate I am to have not only seen this book grow, but to have been a part of it for four years. Maybe I'm a little biased, it being my senior year and all, but this book is my favorite and the one that I certainly intend to show off the most. Even though it was a roller coaster of a journey, the end result is definitely something to be proud of, and I am so grateful to everyone who had any part of this project.

First and foremost I must thank Alyssa De Santis, my Assistant Editor-in-Chief, head Copy Editor, and my main support. This book would never exist if it weren't for you. I cannot say enough wonderful things about how incredible you are. Over the past two years our friendship has grown with the caliber of this book, and I am confident you will take the Argo to even greater heights. Laura and James, thank you for putting up with me and accepting the incredibly challenging but rewarding task of Co-Photography Editors. The pictures in this book are simply beautiful. Katy, thank you for making me laugh- the copy is now in your talented hands and you will be great! To Megan, your amazing ability to think outside the box and take our theme in a whole new direction was so wonderful and was an asset to this edition. Cody and Dan, thank you for all the behind the scenes work you do- you make this book run! And thank you to my entire staff- I love that we really collaborated and all had a major role in the production of this book.

Special thanks to our advisor, Connie McGinnis, David Bollman of Herff Jones, Neal Edman, Camille Hawthorne, and the Student Affairs Office (Especially Kathy Susio and Beth Brooks), Megan Salinetro for all of her picture contributions, Mark Meighan for making the All-Campus "WC" Picture possible, the Holcad staff (especially for the googley-eyes), Mary Ellen Dougherty of Lifetouch Photography, everyone who posed for the divider pages (were you able to figure them all out?), President Dorman, and the Student Publications Board. Finally a HUGE thank you to everyone who helped identify people for this book.

As I close this chapter of my life, I am excited to see what the future holds. I know this book is in extremely capable hands and I look forward to seeing what will be accomplished and how much more it will grow.

Sincerely,
Ali Pabrinkis
